Legal statement

Following the confirmation that Iran had fulfilled its obligations under the nuclear accord with the UN, we are working with our bank, Barclays, to assess how the dismantling of the sanctions in Iran will be put into effect and over what timescale. Until there is clarity on this, unfortunately we remain unable to undertake any such transactions with any individual or organisation based within Iran via the Iranian Banking infrastructure or by any other mechanism.

Accordingly, the IET is not currently able to make available the following goods and services:

- Books journals or any other paid-for publications
- All paid for events
- Memberships
- Accreditations
- Any other financial transactions

Should you have any question regarding this matter please contact eventsa1@theiet.org who will be happy to advise you.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

I am an international delegate, why do I need to pay VAT?

Conferences that take place in the UK are liable for UK VAT as they are classed under VAT legislation as 'services' and therefore VAT is chargeable at source.

Overseas delegates must pay the VAT charged on their invoice initially but may be able to claim this back from the UK VAT office.

For information on reclaiming VAT see Notice no 723A which can be obtained from the HM Revenue & Customs website.

Continuing Professional Development (CPD) hours

The IET operates a voluntary (opt-in) Continuing Professional Development (CPD) monitoring scheme, available to TMIET, MIET and FIET members. This new scheme aims to enhance CPD support for members through improved guidance and feedback.

To request a CPD certificate please email eventsa2@theiet.org or speak to us onsite.

For further information please visit the CPD website.

Online registration

The system where authors can submit papers for conferences is a different system to the one that accepts delegate registration.

To register online as a delegate for the event an IET website username and password will be required.

New online users - To create a new login, visit www.theiet.org and click on the 'Login' button on the top right hand side of the page.

An option to 'Register' will appear. Users will be required to follow the onscreen instructions to create an account.

A username and password will then enable new users to register to attend an event online.

Please contact eventsa1@theiet.org if further assistance is required.
